Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 7-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Blackwelder et al (4932612) in view of Ledwinka et al (1851194).

Blackewelder et al shows an aircraft with a corrugated fuselage and wings with the entire length of the ventral surfaces covered thereof and the top edges of the corrugations are covered in rubber which has some friction value and is fireporoof to some value. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to make the cross section of the fuselage oval shaped as taught by Ledwinka et al since it is a mere change of shape. It is noted that if any increase in surface area occurs there will be an increase in drag. It is also noted that the language "increase a lift force" or "increase in a friction" does qualify an increase over what, since drag and lift increase as the speed of the wing increases. Any thing that increases drag will slow the flow at that point.

1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.
2. Claims 7-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. It is also noted that the language "increase a lift force" or "increase in a friction" does qualify an increase over what. It is also noted that when the surface is modified over that of a smooth surface, drag is increased and the flow is slowed down. The slowing of the flow relative to the surface the boundary layer will increase and deflect the free stream flow at that point which will accelerate the flow at a point outside the boundary layer and this will actually reduce the pressure on the lower surface and would appear to decrease the lift. So it is not clear that the lift is increased.
